

Social and emotional development

Children's ability to regulate their emotions and skilfully manage social interactions is critical to their healthy development and future success.

I don't need my mummy or daddy to stay with me at nursery. I know they will come back for me after I have finished playing.

When one of my friends hurts themselves, it makes me feel sad too. I try to help them feel happy again.

I am starting to share and take turns, I find this hard during some games but I am learning.

I am able to use the toilet by myself! Sometimes I can have a little accident but that's ok because I'm only three.

I love pretending to be a princess, or imagining that I am making sandwiches in the kitchen to take on a picnic.
